This is an office action for serial number 10/630,703.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

The claims are generally narrative and indefinite, failing to conform with current U.S. practice. They appear to be a literal translation into English from a foreign document and are replete with grammatical and idiomatic errors.

The claims are generally narrative and indefinite, failing to conform with current U.S. practice. They appear to be a literal translation into English from a foreign document and are replete with grammatical and idiomatic errors.

Claim 1 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 1 recites the limitation "frame rod" in line 14. There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim.

Art Unit: 3632

Claim 2 recites the limitation "a desktop" in line 1. There is improper antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim. "a" should be deleted and -the-- inserted.

In claim 2 the applicant claims "the base can be a thin computer or an integrated molded plate". The claim has to definitely state either one or the other the term "can be" make the claim indefinite. The base is either a computer or a integrated molded plate. The claim should be recited such as --the base being one of a computer or an integrated molded plate--.

In claim 4, "a cavity that has an edge to match the rotation path in a curved surface" is unclear and indefinite. Where is this cavity located on the invention in relation to the this language.

The claims have been rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112 for the above reasons. Please note that the Examiner may not have pointed out each and every example of indefiniteness. The applicant is required to review all the claim language to make sure the claimed invention is clear and definite.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-4 are rejected, as best understood under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Rahemtulla 6,487,068 in view of Erickson 3,952,369 in further view of Goodman et al.

(Goodman). Rahemtulla discloses a desktop LCD support comprising a fixture module consisting a hinge providing maximum friction as being conventional hinge means (column 2, lines 35ff), and a inclined support module consisting of a rotary frame (28), and a plurality of openings (30) in the longitudinal direction. Rahemtulla discloses all of the limitations of the claimed invention except for the wedge and the two axles. Erickson teaches that it is known to have a conventional hinge means being a wedge member having a curved opening(51) on the top and a 90 degree wedge on the bottom (52). It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to have modified Rahemtulla to have included the hinge means as taught by Erickson for the purpose of providing a hinge means that allows the LCD to be easily removed from the base when needed for repair or for storing in compact places. Rahemtulla in view of Erickson discloses all of the limitations of the claimed invention except for the plurality of opening being curved. Goodman teaches that it is known to have a LCD that is pivotably mounted by a hinge means (75) to a base using a hinge and supported in an upright position using a rotary frame (80) and curved openings (81). It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to have modified Rahemtulla in view of Erickson to have made the plurality of openings curved as taught by Erickson for the purpose of providing of facilitating attachment of the rotary frame to the base member when positioning the LCD in an angled position relative to the base.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

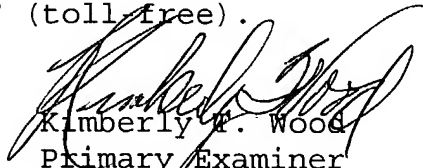

The prior art discloses conventional LCD supports and conventional hinges.
